

Learning Intention

I am learning to anticipate, or predict some outcomes, or things that might happen.

Success Criteria

I will use my knowledge of cause and effect to give suggestions about what I think might happen in a story.

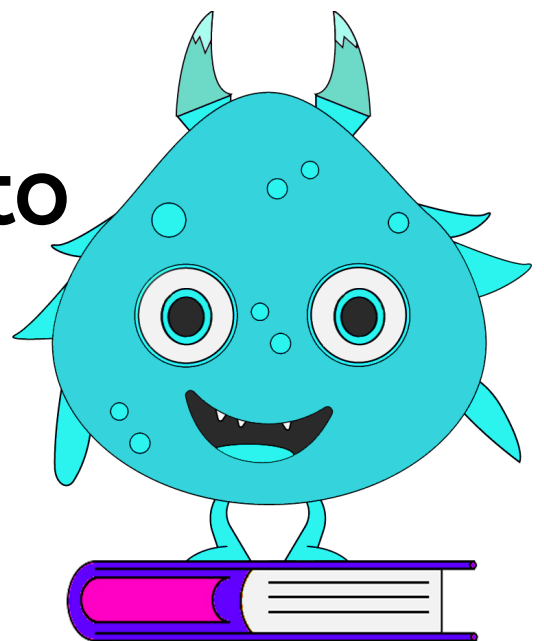

Making Judgments

A judgment is an opinion that is formed by thinking carefully about something and deciding whether you think it is right or wrong.

When skilful readers make judgments, they notice what is being said or done. This is called evidence.

They use evidence to justify or give reasons for their thinking.

Learning Checklist

Check these off as you go.

Did I:	✓
match some causes with some effects?
speak in sentences?
listen to other people's ideas?

Toby's Beach Visit

Toby forgot his sunhat, sunscreen and swim shirt. Never mind! Toby didn't care. If he got hot, he'd just go in the water.

Toby could see the safety flags up the beach, but it was too far. He decided to swim where he was.

Toby wasn't a strong swimmer, but he wanted to go into the deep water.

Toby wanted to play in the sand, so he raced off quickly leaving his floaty ring down near the water.
