

Moral

The moral of a story is the life lesson readers learn.

Readers learn the lesson by thinking about how the characters act and how they solve problems. To work out the moral, ask yourself:

“What is the important lesson I should learn from this?”

“How does this story help me to know how to act?”